"I worked with Mynor from 2008 to 2012 during his time leading US operations for Amadeus. In an environment that serves as the heart of the global reservation system—powering the majority of the world's airlines and airports—Mynor was responsible for incident management, service reliability, and deployment. What truly set Mynor apart was the operational excellence he instilled in his team and his customer-obsessed approach to service stability. When disruptions occurred that could impact travel infrastructure globally, Mynor remained calm and professional, leading his team to act with total precision. He didn't work in a vacuum; he was a bridge-builder who worked hand-in-hand with product development teams to drive swift, effective resolutions. His leadership style was defined by a rare combination of technical rigor and a collaborative spirit. Mynor is an extremely driven professional, and his ability to lead through mission-critical challenges made him an invaluable partner to work with."

"I worked with Mynor Diaz during his time as Lead Systems Engineer at Amadeus. He consistently demonstrated strong technical knowledge, particularly in system stability and high-availability environments. Mynor was proactive in addressing issues and led teams to fast incident recoveries. He was also a supportive and approachable colleague, making collaboration easy across teams - even across the globe."

"I have cooperated with Mynor in the context of the Monitoring Solutions (I was at that time the Product Owner of this) used by the entire Front Line Service teams. He contributed significantly to the shaping of critical parts of the solution by providing clear requirements and sharing a pragmatic vision of the day to day of our solution users. He demonstrated an ability to go into the technical details of our platform and worked hand in hand with our team to define an achievable and still efficient solution. Mynor is this kind of team worker that you appreciate for his involvement, dedication and perseverance. He will spend all the required efforts (and more) to get things understood and if required he is even able to stretch his role, as for instance when he managed required SAFe assets creation and follow-up to make things happening (Epic Owner role). It is in Mynor DNA to get knowledge, process and tools ever improved to get faster, better and cleaner resolution of Incident. Far more than a valuable technical and resolution expert, he is also able to step back to look at the broader picture. I would really appreciate to get more chances to work with Mynor."

"I started at Amadeus under Adam's supervision and have worked under his leadership, alongside him as a colleague, and on multiple separate teams collaborating with him. I can say with all honesty that his character and drive are unique and unforgettable. Adam consistently has demonstrated pinpoint attention to detail, and an unwavering focus on ensuring matters are resolved. Whether project-based or problem-based, I've always trusted Adam to either have or seek the expertise needed to overdeliver."

"For nearly 10 years I had the pleasure of working alongside Mynor. I found Mynor always helpful and extremely knowledgeable in his area of expertise. Mynor is adaptable, detailed, conscientious worker who would go above and beyond in any task/project he was faced with."

Javier Rodriguez

"I have been Adam's colleague for over fifteen years. Throughout our years as co-workers I've known him to be a trustworthy, dependable, and level-headed guy. He's been able to adapt with the times as the IT industry has evolved. Adam is not afraid to speak his mind, but always keeps the discussion respectable. He is a driven overachiever and would be a benefit to any team."

"I met Mynor the first day I joined Amadeus (he was actually at my interview!). Even though I have never worked in the same team with him, we have had the opportunity to interact regularly in troubleshooting sessions or projects. He is one of the most valuable colleagues I've ever had. He's not only a skilled technology expert, but a great leader! I have complete admiration for his patience to teach (it just comes natural to him), and the discipline he shows in every challenge he commits to overcome. Every time I've needed help with a problem, he's always available, and with the best attitude to help! He is a problem solver, and a great coordinator, with excellent communication skills. A few years ago, I had the opportunity to work with him in the coordination and delivery of cloud technology trainings for our colleagues. I was very impressed by his leadership, knowledge, and determination to plan everything. I know the many days and nights he spent preparing for this, and the results showed nothing but greatness. His trainings were a success, and this is just one example of the quality of work he's accustomed to do. I am very thankful for colleagues like Mynor, and cannot recommend him enough!"

"Adam Diaz is an knowledgeable engineer and an excellent team supervisor. In our more than three years working together for the Amadeus Global Operations team he has proven himself to be a capable leader and an example to follow by our engineers and managers. I've been impressed with his organizational skills, his ability to lead the team through any extraordinary situations as well as day-to-day operations and have the technical knowledge to assist in any area. He excels in his understanding of the administrative requirements of the department, while also doing more hands-on management and organization of the team's activities and keeping up to date with the latest technological advancements in our business. Adam is constantly seeking to improve our technical procedures and business process. Our team is more technically proficient and efficient thanks to his hard work. Any team will be extremely lucky to have him as a member and its leader."

"During my 4 year tenure at Amadeus, it was a pleasure working with Mynor as the lead in our team. Mynor was very technical and a great lead. Thanks to his mentorship and technical advice I was able to deliver a lot of great projects for Amadeus and improve my skills as an Engineer. Mynor played a big role in where my engineering career is today."

"While working as an IT Operations Service Manager for Amadeus' front line operational area, I had the opportunity to work with Adam as my right hand and immediate eyes & ears to any unforeseen degradation and/or outage in service. Adam's technical skills, knowledge of Amadeus' processes and significant knowledge of the OBE world always brought me comfort and ease throughout incidents as I then knew that I had someone with extensive experience and skills to assist and/or lead recovery efforts in order to minimize impact to our customers. Having worked with Adam for several years and throughout various roles, I can say that he'd be a significant asset to any role, team, or corporation looking for the perfect combination of technical and leadership skills."

"Mynor was a fantastic lead during my time at Amadeus. He ran a tight ship and was a great mentor to me in my career."

Renaud Jourdan

"Always a pleasure to work with you, your professionalism and your desire to clarify the problems before taking any decision."

Clive Harracksingh

"During my contract at Amadeus, Mynor took the time to bring me up to speed with the business side as well as operations during a time when the staffing was limited. His technical knowledge, drive, experience and leadership skills played a key part in helping the Airline IT technical environment at Amadeus grow. I strongly recommend him for any technical lead especially a management role."

Gustavo Flores

"I worked with Mynor in the operations team in Miami. Under his supervision we formalized and streamlined our procedures. He made the team more efficient and was able to direct the individual strengths into the common goal. Personally, he is very honorable and never takes the easy path if it is not the best one. It was a pleasure working with him."

Mark Gruenberg

"Adam was a good listener and a great problem solver. His leadership, problem solving, crisis management, and listening abilities and his technical excellence have made his team the top support team in Amadeus world wide support ecosystem."

Nikolaus Samberger

"Mynor is a dedicated systems engineer. We have been collaborating for many years now (long distance, continents apart) and Mynor has always been very helpful, thorough and organised. Mynor has supported us in many occasion to come out of critical situations or to implement new key functionalities. I have always appreciated working with him and his team."

Gérard Yin

"Trust, expert knowledge, excellent service... I really liked to work with Mynor when I was a developer. He understood the different constraints (operational, technical, business) and always did his most to balance them efficiently. Despite miles of distance, he was always available when we needed help. I'd really enjoy working with Mynor again in the future."

Jean-Noel Donadio

"I have the chance to work with Mynor for a few years now. While my teams are based in Nice (France), Mynor's team is based in Miami and is basically taking care of the follow-up of the application my teams are in charge of (Mynor's organization is taking care of application loads, system changes ...). People from our both organizations having different cultures, different jobs, and being working on different time-zones, it was difficult to anticipate how both organizations would work together, based on those different constraints. Mynor has been able to build a very strong relationship between our two remote organizations. People from my organization really appreciate the quality of the service and relation we have with Mynor's organization. Mynor is a very strict, open-minded, professional and dedicated person. He is clearly really involved on his work, always ready to ensure we progress on the right direction. One key positive point according to me, is that Mynor has ensured his teams do not only understand the technical side of our programs, but also the functional and strategically aspects of our business. This curiosity, and wish to master a part of the business which was not mandatory for doing their standard activities, was certainly the key point for ensuring such a successful organization, by ensuring people are involved on the evolution of our business, and are not only "pressing buttons" without really understanding what is happening behind. This resulted in higher quality of the work and increase of motivation of all people working in our respective teams. Last, I had the pleasure to have Mynor joining my department during a few weeks in Nice last year (idea was for him to better understand the way we are working and see what could perhaps be enhanced in our current processes). On top of working with a very professional person, my teams have been pleased to have the opportunity to meet Mynor during a few weeks, and to therefore have with him a different relationship than the standard "business" one. Everyone has appreciated his positive spirit, good relationship, and his integration was excellent. I am personally considering Mynor as a very valuable person. Best regards. Jean-Noël"

"Mynor is a brilliant systems engineer. Not only is he very well organized and very efficient, but he also is a pleasant coworker. Each time I worked with him, I have been amazed by his motivation to always understand the technical details of the critical aspects of our very complex production system."

"During the period I worked with Mynor at Rollins, he was an exemplary Unix administrator. He had a thirst for knowledge and was driven to be the best version of himself. While working with Mynor, he ensured our production environments were always running smoothly and all maintenance took place on schedule. When a problem would arise, he resolved them quickly and competently. He was the go-to man for all things administration. Besides being an excellent admin, he was also a great team member. He shared his knowledge willingly and always took the time to cross-train when somebody expressed an interest in expanding their skill set. Mynor will excel in any position he pursues. He is a true professional and it is my pleasure to write a recommendation for him."

Thomas Geist

"I know Mynor as a very enthusiastic professional. Both, his technical and personal skills are exemplary."

Pierre-Philippe di Costanzo

"Mynor is a focused systems engineer, in many occasions we have had to collaborate on production support and system evolution activities. Mynor is organised and very thorough which is essential in his field of activity. Despite the distance between our groups (different continents, a few thousand Km away) the relationship is excellent, we work as one single team determined to deliver complex changes to the production systems. His professional excellence is supplemented by no less excellent interpersonal relationship skills. I highly recommend Mynor."

Lionel Martig

"Mynor is one of our key system engineers operating the complex distributed systems of Amadeus. He is very reliable, conscientious, proactive and curious beyond his area of responsibility. All this allows us on daily basis to handle difficult situations and to learn from them in order to monitor, anticipate and always improving!"

Armando Benavides, A-CSM

"I worked with Mynor at Rollins from 2001 to 2003. As the UNIX Systems Administrator he was responsible for supporting all the servers within the company's national call center. I was always impressed with how he was able to keep the remote center going with minimal support from IT (UNIX servers in an AS400 shop). Being self-directed, he was able to research and resolve most issues on his own. He was also great at documenting his work."

Kris Carter

"Mynor did a terrific job at Rollins. He was reliable, conscientious, and took a keen interest in the business and our customers' needs. His technical skills are also top-notch."

Eric Owens

"Mynor is a great and very knowledgeable guy. During our time together Mynor showed extraordinary skills in system administration, database administration and general troubleshooting. Mynor gets along well with others and works until the job is complete. There seldom was a problem that couldn't be resolved quickly by Mynor Diaz.
